TAINAN Traditional culture continues to thrive in Tainan, the oldest city in the country. Inside temples that are hundreds of years old, people bwah bwey (cast moon blocks) to determine the best course of action, just as their ancestors did when the temples first opened. Outside, Tainanese are fastidious about food, and a number of dishes are exclusive to the region but renowned all over the country.

TOKYO Yoking past and future, Tokyo dazzles with its traditional culture and passion for everything new. This ever-changing metropolis of over 12 million is perhaps the most gorgeous ugly city in the world. It's a superdense riot of mismatched buildings, overhead wiring and garish neon. Yet it has the moxie to build the second tallest tower in the world on a foundation of reclaimed land and several bucking tectonic plates. Add one of the planet's best mass transit systems and you have the perfect sci-fi cityscape.
